Conference Roadmap

Navigate Your Way to Conference Success!

Before the Conference:

- Find the schedule, pick sessions you're most interested in attending, and sketch out a plan for the day.
- Pick backups just in case a session is full.
- Prepare a short introduction for yourself (this includes your name, university, major, and career/research interests).
- If you don't own professional clothes you feel comfortable in, see if there's a friend you can borrow from, check out the UP clothing closet, or browse a thrift store.

At the Conference:

- Ask questions during sessions and start conversations. Many attendees come to conferences alone and want to network. Take every chance to get to know new people!
- Enjoying the conversation? Ask them for their LinkedIn, contact information, or business card.
- Follow up with them after the event to grow your network.

Don't forget to enjoy the experience and HAVE FUN!

How to sound Authentic + Approachable

- Friendly, but not overly casual (Think: warm mentor, not a buddy)
- Encouraging and empowering
- Sincere, not salesy
- Conversational, not corporate
- Optimistic, but grounded in reality

Key Phrases

- “We’re here to help you...”
- “You don’t need to have it all figured out.”
- “Let’s explore this together.”
- “Here’s a good place to start.”
- “We’ve got your back.”
- “Real-world experience starts here.”
- “You belong here.”

Stylistic Elements of the Dialogue

Quality	Description	Example
Real	Say what you mean — no jargon or fluff	“Here’s what you need to know to get started.”
Supportive	Emphasize student success and growth	“We’re here to help you find what’s next.”
Inclusive	Speak to all students — first-gen, international, undecided, etc.	“No matter where you’re starting from, we’ve got resources to help.”
Empowering	Encourage action and confidence	“You’ve got options — let’s figure out what’s right for you.”
Approachable	Invite conversation and questions	“Not sure where to begin? That’s totally okay — start here.”

Voice and Language

Do	Don't
Speak like a real person	Sound like a policy manual
Use emojis sparingly and meaningfully	Overdo it or feel like you're trying too hard
Keep captions brief with value upfront	Bury the point or make it text-heavy
Be clear about how to engage (save, DM, visit link)	Leave students guessing what to do
Share real moments	Only post polished, corporate graphics

Daily and Engaging

Content Type	Ideas	Tone Notes
Quick Tips	Resume hacks, interview reminders, LinkedIn do's/don'ts	Keep it helpful, bite-sized, and saveable
Student Spotlights	"Meet [Name]"—featuring internships, campus jobs, career journeys	Use their own words! Let their voice lead
Day-in-the-Life	Takeovers from student workers, alumni in the field	Use stories + reels to stay casual and real
Event Promos	Workshops, fairs, drop-ins, deadlines	Keep it short, visual, and action-based ("See you there?")
Q&A or Myth-Busting	"Is it too late to find a summer job?"	Friendly and reassuring—answer like you would in person
Behind the Scenes	Show the team, office vibes, prepping for events	Builds approachability and trust
Polls, Stickers, Questions	"How's your resume looking right now?" / "What's your dream job?"	Keeps content interactive and relatable

PHYSICAL MEDIA

Do

- Use student-centered, second-person voice
 - "You can stop by for help with your resume."
- Keep messaging focused and clear
 - One main topic or call-to-action per flier or slide.
- Stick to University of Portland's brand guidelines
- Create strong visual hierarchy
 - → Big headline → short benefit → action (QR code, time/place, link).
- Speak like a real person
 - "Need help finding a summer job?" instead of formal language.
- Invite conversation at tables
 - Use prompts, polls, or fun giveaways to draw students in.
- Include student voices and real stories
 - "The Career Center helped me land a job I'm excited about."
- Keep presentations light and visual
- Make the student the focus
 - Always lead with "you" language and student outcomes.

Do Not

- Don't overcrowd fliers or slides
 - No walls of text, tiny print, or multiple QR codes.
- Don't go off-brand visually
- Don't make students search for info
 - Keep location, time, and next steps super obvious.
- Don't use robotic or formal phrasing
 - Skip "Are you interested in utilizing our services?"
- Don't sit passively behind a table
 - Initiate conversation and engage with energy.
- Don't overwhelm with too many actions
 - One clear action is better than four vague ones.
- Don't read from presentation slides
 - Use visuals and talk to your audience.
- Don't center materials around the department
 - Focus on how students benefit.
